Women's History Month

Women's History Month is celebrated in March to commemorate the contributions and achievements of women despite the historical social challenges they may have faced.

To celebrate, you will work with some classmates to produce a podcast that highlights a prominent woman in American history and provides details about her life, work, challenges she may have faced, impact on history, and her legacy.

Use resources such as <https://www.womenshistory.org/>, to develop your script. Your teacher will check your script-writing using the Draft>Edit>Revise process. After your podcast has been recorded and edited, you teacher will distribute the finished product during the month of March as part of a series.
